Wetting their lines on Labor Day

DNA of Stephenson killer found

The brutal murders of Bill and Peggy Stephenson, of Florence, 16 months ago, shocked hundreds of people in Northern Kentucky including their many close friends and relatives who live in Gallatin County.

Although no one has been arrested for the murders, police said last Thursday, Aug. 31, they now have a vital piece of evidence that may lead to the killer (or killers).

At a news conference in front of the Stephensons’ condominium at the Oakbrook Subdivision, Boone County Sheriff’s department spokesman Tom Scheben said they have isolated the DNA of the person who killed the couple on May 29, 2011. They now have to match it to the assailant.

The DNA was found in several locations inside the condo. Scheben praised Kentucky State Police laboratory technicians for finding it because he said it was like “looking for a needle in a haystack.”

At the news conference, Doug Stephenson, one of the couple’s sons, announced the reward for information leading to an arrest has been raised from $5,000 to $100,000. He also had a message for the killer if he thinks he got away with murder.

“Nothing could be further from the truth,” he said. “We now know who you are genetically and it’s just a matter of time until we find you. The pain and heartache you have caused our family cannot be measured. We will never stop looking for you. One day you will face justice for the despicable and cowardly act you committed against our family.”

The reward is now featured on large banners erected along Interstate 71/75 in Boone County.

The killer’s DNA profile has been entered into the FBI’s database but no match has yet been found, said Scheben. It also has been compared against several “persons of interest” in the case without a match.

One of those “persons of interest” is Charles “Steve” Stephenson, Bill and Peggy Stephenson’s nephew. He is awaiting trial in Indiana for beating his girlfriend, Leigh Jennings, to death with an iron frying pan in her home. He pleaded not guilty to the charge. He also has been charged in Kentucky with tampering with evidence for drug possession. His DNA does not match that found at the murder scene but that doesn’t rule him or anyone else out, Scheben said.

Police have said almost nothing about the murders since the bodies were found by a relative who became concerned when the couple did not show up for Sunday services at the Union Baptist Church. Peggy played the organ at the church for over 40 years and Billy was a deacon. The murder scene has not been described, there has been no mention of the murder weapon, whether there was a sign of forced entry, or how the couple died.

Scheben said last week the killer spent a significant amount of time in the condominium and said the time of death was between 1 a.m. and 4 a.m. He also said the killer took time to arrange the murder scene in a “unique way.”

Amazon expansion is good news for NKY

With the recent announcement that Amazon.com will enlarge its Hebron warehouse, Northern Kentucky continues to defy the weak national economy.

Amazon plans to double the size of its Boone County warehouse. Along with that expansion, the company will hire as many as 900 full-time workers along with 5,000 seasonal workers to meet holiday needs.

The Seattle-based online retailer uses the Hebron site for shipping books and other items it sells. The company is known for treating its 65,000 worldwide employees well.

“Median pay at our fulfillment centers is 30 percent higher than that for people who work in traditional retail stores,” said company spokesman Kelly Cheeseman. “That doesn’t include the stock grants that full-time employees receive, which over the past five years have added an average of 9 percent to their base pay”

Amazon opened its distribution center in Hebron in 2005 with 50 employees. It now has more than 1,000.

The news about the expansion is particularly welcome as Comair will cease doing business at the airport on September 29, laying off 1,000 employees.

Verona man, 92, shoots, kills intruder

Earl Jones is WW II Vet

Earl Jones, a 92-year-old man from Verona, is being applauded for shooting and killing a man who broke into his house just after 2 a.m. Monday. Jones, a World War II U. S. Army Air Force veteran, lives in Boone County not far from the Gallatin County line.

Jones has lived alone in his house on Violet Rd. since the death of his wife in 2006. He had just turned off the television when he heard a loud noise in his basement. He said he knew someone had broken through the basement door.

After hearing the intruders, Jones calmly walked over to get his .22-caliber rifle from behind his bedroom door. He then returned to the living room, sat down in a chair that had a clear view of the door that leads to the basement and waited with the rifle in his lap.

He raised the rifle to his shoulder about 15 minutes later when he heard footsteps coming up the stairs. The intruder then kicked open the door and Jones fired one shot into the man’s chest. It’s believed Lloyd “Adam” Maxwell, 24, of Richmond, Ky. died almost instantly.

Jones told reporters he feels justified for protecting the 500-acre farm he has worked since 1955 with deadly force.

“These kind of people aren’t worth any more to me than a groundhog,” he told reporters.

The two men with Maxwell, Ryan Dalton, 22 and Donnie Inabnit, 20, both of Dry Ridge, fled the home with Maxwell’s body immediately after the shooting. Jones did not pursue them. Soon after, Dalton and Inabnit called police with a fabricated story about how Maxwell had been shot. They were charged with second-degree burglary and tampering with evidence after admitting their role in the break-in.

“I was hoping another one of them would come up the stairs,” Jones said Monday afternoon. “I aimed right for his heart. I didn’t go to war for nothing. I have the right to carry a gun. That’s what I told the police.”

No charges are expected to be filed against Jones because Kentucky has what’s called a “castle doctrine” that allows the defense of one’s home with deadly force.

The break-in was the third at his farm this year. In April, thieves stole 90 head of cattle from the field behind his house. In August, burglars took a television, a few thousand dollars in cash, a personal check and ripped his phone out of the wall.

Jones said he’s not happy police took the rifle used in the shooting because he won’t be able to protect himself if someone returns for revenge. He also said he didn’t like how Boone County’s sheriff’s deputies treated him when they arrived at the scene.

Throughout the ordeal Jones said he was never scared or mad. “It was simple,” he said. “That man was going to take my life. He was hunting me. I was protecting myself.”

Jobless rate falls here

Unemployment in Gallatin County fell to 8.4 percent in July according to the Kentucky Office of Employment. June’s rate was 8.8 percent.

Unemployment in the eight county Northern Kentucky area remained unchanged in July at 7.6 percent. Owen County had the lowest July unemployment rate in the area at 7.1 percent. Carroll County’s 9.4 percent rate was the highest.

Across Kentucky, unemployment rose from 8.4 percent in June to 8.5 percent in July.

Woodford County recorded the lowest jobless rate in Kentucky in July at 5.9 percent. It was followed by Fayette and Franklin counties at 6.6 percent, Oldham and Union counties at 6.7 percent and Scott and Shelby counties at 6.8 percent.

Magoffin County had the Commonwealth’s highest unemployment rate in July at 16.7 percent. It was followed by Fulton County at 15.4 percent, Harlan County at 14.6 percent, Jackson County at 14.4 and Leslie County at 14.3 percent.

This and That

By Kelley Warnick

The scientific world couldn’t have come up with better news for me and I’m not talking about the $2.4 billion vehicle named Curiosity that’s driving around Mars these days.

True, I look up at the Red Planet in awe at times, mostly because it’s so far away. I don’t care what anyone says, 240 million miles is quite a hike and I’m not planning to travel that far no matter how many frequent flier miles are at stake.

No, the exciting scientific news I’m

Planning for a healthy picnic talking about came from two entirely different fronts and concerns something that’s far more important to me: My diet and my health. The news broke as I was planning for my annual Labor Day picnic.

The first bulletin dealt with wine, one of my favorite subjects. We already know that modest red wine consumption is good for you. That’s easy to see. How else can you explain the success of the French people?

They smoke like chimneys, have more fat in their diets than Ronald McDonald, have the personal hygiene habits of barnyard animals, yet they seem to live forever. It must be the red wine they begin drinking when they’re still in diapers that keeps their blood flowing.

Researchers have discovered a chemical in wine not only helps the heart, but also slows the aging process. That chemical is called resveratrol and it’s especially prevalent in wine grown from grapes in cold, wet climates.

Not only are vintners delighted with the news, pharmaceutical companies have already begun to investigate how resveratrol can be used as a drug to help people live longer, fuller lives.

So, a couple of bottles of wine from the cold and wet state of Washington were the first two things to go into my picnic basket.

After learning that wine would stop me from aging, I stumbled across more good news.

A German study says I can have a healthy heart if I make chocolate a part of my diet and the darker the better. Those scientists say a substance called polyphenol in chocolate lowers blood pressure and reduces the risk of heart disease.

Both studies emphasized the findings were preliminary and said a balanced diet and regular exercise remain the best tools to build a healthy body.

Nevertheless, Monday, as I got ready for my Labor Day picnic, my basket was filled with the building blocks for a healthy life which included plenty of red wine and dark chocolate.

I just need one more scientific study to make my next picnic perfect. By this time next year, I hope to stumble across a report that says beer and pretzels will grow hair on bald heads, cleanse your liver, and make you strong as an ox.

If that happens, I’ll know two things. First, I’ll have all the ingredients I need for a completely guilt-free picnic. Second, I’ll probably live forever.

Thank a veteran as we mark the end of WWII

This past Sunday, September 2nd, marked the 67th anniversary of the day General Douglas MacArthur accepted the surrender of Japan from General Yoshijiro Umezu aboard the USS Missouri in Tokyo Bay in 1945. The surrender brought a close to the Second World War.

Japan had been a fanatical enemy. Its soldiers were fanatical almost to their extinction. The cost was horrendous not only in terms of material resources, but human life. The Four Horseman of the Apocalypse rode the earth unrestricted. There was no family in the United States that was not affected by the war.

Yet out of the chaos, death, and destruction of World War II, came much good.

The war brought us penicillin and blood plasma, which saved untold lives on the battlefield. There were also new surgical techniques developed that serve us to this day.

The United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization came into being. Space travel and viable commercial air travel sprang from the jets and rockets that were developed.

The helicopters ushered in fast medical evacuation for the injured, both soldiers and civilians. And we made huge strides with computer technology, thanks to Rear Admiral Grace Hopper.

But the one thing that benefitted the United States the most was the creation of the GI Bill.

For the first time, a college education was possible for thousands of men and women who had served their country. Many took advantage of it and those people led this nation forward into the second half of the 20th Century.

If you were 20 years old on September 2nd, 1945, you would be 87 years old today. So ask yourself how many people do you know who are 87 and served in the Second World War?

I know none, as those I did know have already died. If you know one you are lucky. Be sure to give thanks, not only for their friendship, but also for their service to the United States of America.

Kentucky Commentary

The faces behind Kentucky's road names

If you vacationed in Kentucky this summer, you probably noticed one of those verbose, hard-to-read route signs for Kentucky's parkways. You may have wondered just who were, or are, all these people? The ones whose names have been tacked onto, or in some cases put in places of, original names that were quintessentially Kentucky, such as Green River and Daniel Boone?

In 1956, the Kentucky Turnpike became part of the interstate system, which inaugurated America's big road era. Gov. Bert Combs jumped on the bandwagon and started a 12-year run of toll road construction that spanned Kentucky, starting with the Mountain Parkway.

It seemed fitting when, in 1976, Gov. Julian Carroll added Combs's name to our first state parkway.

In 1998, Kentucky began a road-naming binge, starting with the Western Kentucky Parkway. Gov. Paul Patton added former governor and senator Wendell Ford's name to the parkway to recognize his long public service.

In 1986, Gov. Martha Layne Collins renamed the Jefferson Freeway the Gene Snyder Freeway in honor of the congressman's budget earmarks that funded completion of the road, which had been started 25 years earlier.

In 1994, the General Assembly renamed the Green River Parkway for Rep. William Natcher, who had just died after a 41-year career in which he never missed a vote, a unique record.

At the end of Wendell Ford's career, he helped secure funds for the William Natcher Bridge across the Ohio River, now part of Owensboro's first direct four-lane connection to Louisville.

Patton took such precedents and ran with them. In 2000, he added the names of Edward "Ned"

Breathitt and Louie B. Nunn to Pennyroyal and Cumberland parkways.

In 2001, Patton added Julian Carroll's name to the Purchase Parkway, named for the Jackson Purchase, that part of Kentucky west of the Tennessee River, which Andrew Jackson and then-Gov. Isaac Shelby bought from the Chickasaw tribe in 1818.

Carroll is the only governor elected from the Purchase. He stayed in Frankfort and now represents it in the state Senate. Near the Capitol is a bridge named for him.

In 2003, Patton's last year in office, he really put the sign-makers to work. He tacked the name of Martha Layne Collins onto the Bluegrass Parkway, the only real connection being that one end of the road is near Versailles, where Collins began her political career. Governor in 1983-87, she is the only woman to have held the office.

The AA Highway was authorized during the 1979-83 term of John Y. Brown, Jr., so Patton added Brown's name to it.

Patton's big surprise was to rename the Daniel Boone Parkway, a two-lane, limited-access road that Nunn had built from London to Hazard. Patton stripped the most famous Kentucky pioneer's name from the highway and dubbed it the Hal Rogers Parkway, in honor of the congressman from Somerset who is now Appropriations Committee chairman.

Patton said Boone is better associated with U.S. 25 E, which roughly follows the old Wilderness Road from Cumberland Gap to Corbin. Boone's name was added to that route in 2005 by then-Gov. Ernie Fletcher.

Patton and his wife have U.S. 119 named for them by Fletcher.

Legislators seem to like names for roads and bridges, some of which are wider than they are long.

When Patton called former Gov. Brereton Jones to ask him what road he'd like to have named after him, Jones said, "I appreciate the thought, but I'm not a big fan of naming roads after people unless they played a significant role in getting the road made. The taxpayers pay for the roads, the politicians don't pay for the roads. Some politicians deserve it, and most politicians do not."

‘AirGallatin’soars again at Bellevue

Chapman throws for 351 yds

Mark Gray
Sports Reporter

The aerial assault continued for the Gallatin County Wildcat football team last week.

Austin Chapman threw for 351 yards and five touchdowns to lead the Cats to a 52-16 victory in Bellevue on Friday night.

The victory gives the Wildcats their first 3-0 start in school history.

Three of Chapman’s scoring strikes went to Brady Lawrence, who caught five passes for 214 yards.

Chris Cunningham caught three balls for 59 yards and a score and Nate McCoy caught four for 39 yards and a touchdown.

Nick Brown carried 19 times for 108 yards and a score. McCoy had a 17-yard scoring run and Chris Brown added a short touchdown run.

Bellevue led 16-7 after the first quarter, but Gallatin scored 25 points in the second quarter to fuel the rout.

Gallatin had 482 yards of total offense and Bellevue totaled just 227.

Defense

Nick Brown led the defense with 15 tackles. Drew Wilson had 10 and Chris Brown added 8. The defense also forced four turnovers.

Coach Tim Browning’s team looks to improve to 4-0 on Friday night when they host Louisville Atherton.

Middle School

The squad lost to Owen County 46-0, last Thursday, in the boys first loss of the season.

Potent air attack

Junior quarterback Austin Chapman, seen here in an earlier game, continues to impress. Last Friday at Bellevue, he threw for 351 yards and five touchdowns in a 52-16 win. The unbeaten Wildcats will host Louisville Atherton at Homecoming this Friday night. Photo by Kelley Warnick

Sports in Kentucky by Bob Watkins

Louisville’s win over Kentucky was so complete, UofL president James Ramsey, out of institutional diplomacy, should have instructed that the handsome Governor’s Cup be kept in its crate Sunday. Taken back to the Howard Schnellenberger football house.

Or, Dr. Ramsey might have it encased and placed at the feet of John Unitas since it might be on campus awhile.

As impressive as the Cardinals’ 32-14 win was, the spread reflects the daylight between the two programs these days. Charlie Strong’s show is moving up, Joker Phillips’ program is — to be kind — standing still.

The Governor’s Cup has become a half-measure that damages football in Kentucky more than heightens interest. It is a grand season launcher for the winner, a nightmare for the loser so awful that the best Coach’s Show spin falls on deaf ears or no ears at all.

Chained to its bearish SEC schedule (not including Alabama, LSU and Texas A&M), Joker Phillips has not been well served by his director of athletics. Kentucky should have stayed with an approach embraced by West Virginia and Florida State. The Mountaineers and Seminoles put 69 points on the board last week, each. Whatever happens next, the winners are rolling. Marshall and Murray State went home with large checks.

Ironically, Louisville got the season opening breather it needed for Big Mo. But Wildcat football is left in regroup mode already, well south of hope, confidence, momentum, all with 70,000 seats to sell for Game Two.

Governor’s Cup aftermath?

• At Louisville this week, Missouri State comes to town off a 51-9 loss at Kansas State. Charlie Strong’s largest problem may be keeping media worship for Teddy Bridgewater at bay. Gushing praise into the kid’s ears drawing comparisons to Michael Vick and other Glamour Leaguers.

• Meanwhile, in Lexington Joker Phillips goes back to a drawing board. But first he should get an apology from six-figure salaried Rick Minter. The latter should tell tell the former “I’m sorry for impersonating a defensive coordinator.” Then the soon-to-be 58-year-old Minter ought have the brass to resign and look for a new line of work.

WKU wins opener

Western Kentucky won a season opener for the first time since 2005. Just as important, while Louisville was slapping Kentucky around up I-65, the Hilltoppers were rolling up 49 points against Austin Peay.

Willie Taggart’s team must have celebrated briefly, before eyeballing the schedule. Next up: The team that pulverized Michigan last week, Alabama ... in Tuscaloosa.

Humphries leads golf team over Wmstown

Mark Gray

Girls

The Gallatin County Lady Wildcat golf team

split two conference games at Sugar Bay Golf Course last week.

On Tuesday, the Lady Cats defeated Carroll County, 223-229.

Kaitlyn Mullins led with a 53. Mariah Gullion shot 61, Tori Lewis, 57; and Adrienne Kearns, 62.

Gallatin fell to Owen County on Wednesday, 181-238.

Wildcat soccer team falls twice to Owen

Mark Gray
Sports Reporter

The boys soccer team was shut out twice by Owen County last week.

The first loss was a 7-0 home loss a week ago, Monday. On Wednesday, the Wildcats fell 2-0 in the All A Classic to the Rebels.

The Wildcats (1-6) make two trips to Covington this week. They play at Latin on Thursday and Holmes on Monday.

V'ballers still winless

The Lady Wildcat volleyball team fell to 0-9 for the season with a 25-19, 25-15 home loss to Walton-Verona last Tuesday.

Coach Brian Gognat’s team played at Trimble County on Tuesday and will travel to Williamstown on Thursday.

Under the program, the bank will donate $10 to the Wildcats for every first down gained at regular season home football games.

“We thought it would be a fun way to support the team,” said Glen Bailey of First Farmers. “The more times they move the chains, the more money we’ll donate.”

Here's what some of our friends and neighbors have been doing lately:

•Last week, we left the Bradleys and the Meyungs in Seattle, ready to board the cruise ship for their Indoor Passage Cruise. Let's see what they did next:

They boarded their ship and set sail in the late afternoon. Monday was a day for ship exploration, activities on board, and cruising north toward the inside passage area of Alaska that can only be reached by ship or airplane. They cruised past islands with snow-capped mountains, the bottom part of the mountains a lush green, with waterfalls everywhere from the melting snow.

The ship arrived at their first port of call, Juneau, the state capitol, on Monday after lunch. They had chosen an excursion to see the famous Mendenhall Glacier - on bicycles! After a van ride to the trail head (they saw a bear on the outskirts of town), they hopped on bikes for a four-mile ride to the left side of the glacier. Mendenhall Glacier is the most famous of Juneau's ice floes and is located 13 miles out of town. The glacier is 12 miles long from its ice-field source, and is one and a half miles wide at the Mendenhall Lake where it calves, or breaks off chunks of ice, for floating icebergs in the lake. They then biked another five miles around the lake to the right side of the glacier for a different view and an opportunity to peruse the visitor's center. The glacier is melting at a rapid pace and may only last 10 to 12 years more. Returning to town, they boarded the famous Mt. Roberts Tram for a 1,800 foot ride up to the mountain top and a spectacular view of Juneau and the surrounding mountains and the bay area. They saw two bald eagles sharing a branch in a tree! More on this exciting adventure next week.

•Shirley Howell recently returned from a weekend in Ashland, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kentucky Davis. They attended a Wynonna

Judd concert and even had meet-and-greet passes to see Wynonna backstage. Shirley reports that the concert was great, Wynonna is a very gracious and lovely lady, and they were all thrilled to have met her in person.

•Barbara and Carvin Baker enjoyed the company of Theresa and Audrey Roberts last Thursday afternoon. The Bakers were pleased to host a luncheon last Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. Larry Slaughter of Fayetteville, North Carolina; and Barb, Jonathan, and Chrissie Locker of Owenton. Sunday afternoon, Barbara attended the fifth birthday party for Audrey Roberts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brent Roberts in New Liberty. HAPPY BIRTHDAY, AUDREY!

•Mary Jane Day attended the Homemaker's Ice Cream Social last Monday evening at the Extension Office. She helped Betty Wright, Margaret Burke, and Louise Hiles make the ice cream, and Mayme Walters brought a huge cake which Mary Jane pronounced delicious. Several other ladies contributed their brownies and cookies, and all attendees enjoyed the wonderful treats. The Ice Cream Social is the Homemaker's annual kickoff for their upcoming year. Their next event will be a Tasting Bee on October 19th, and good attendance is expected.

•Betty West Lionberger reports that while traveling near Tapering Point this week she saw a doe and fawn and was surprised to see that the fawn was white with brown spots, while the doe was the normal brown color. Anyone else seen a white deer in the County?

Cindy and Jack Williamson are proud to announce the birth of their first granddaughter, born September 2nd to their daughter, Olivia, and father Josh Hendren. The beautiful baby girl weighed in at 6 pounds, 14 ounces and has been named Nova Skye. Nine year-old Jacalyn Williamson is thrilled to be an aunt, and can't wait to hold her little niece. Mother and baby are doing fine. CONGRATULATIONS!

•John and Marty Bennet enjoyed the company of their children over the weekend. Visiting the Bennets were son John Jr. and wife, Susan, with daughters Stacey and Bethany; Stacey's friend, Nick Ratterman; son Tim Bennet; Whitney Bennet and fiancé, Bill Dubois; Michael and Lindsay Koehl and their sons, Carson and Nolan; Ashley and Tony Gray. They were thankful it didn't rain until Sunday evening so they could all enjoy their water sports. John said he had plenty of help cleaning up the downstairs in preparation for some remodeling he plans in the near future.

•Loren Roberts enjoyed Labor Day buffet dinner at Belterra.

•Alex Weldon and her college friend, Desiree Elsevier of Spar Kill, New York, enjoyed a week-long road trip through Dallas and Memphis, visiting other college friends. Desiree stayed at Seven Pines for a few days, mainly reading on the porch swing. Great to have time to catch up with longtime friends.

ANNIE'S ANTICS: The puppy is tall enough now to reach into the bathroom waste can, and enjoys pulling out all the trash in there while I am in the bath and unavailable to stop her. She had a visit this week from Patsy Brown's dog, Sophie, and was a bit intimidated when Sophie barked at her and wanted to play. However, Annie exhibited her bravado when she encountered a small cricket in the bathroom, and chased him under the radiator.

Waterfront fun at Bessey's

John and Linda Bessey were pleased and excited to welcome their son, Austin, and five of his friends home for the long weekend. Austin, and friends John Metzger, Michael Lawson, Colleen Huster, Catherine Hogland, and Andrew Mangovi, had just returned from a six-week internship in Sydney, Australia, and they all spent the weekend with the Besseys.

They enjoyed water skiing, jet skiing, knee boarding, and just relaxing at the Besseys' Warsaw home. Austin said they all loved being in Sydney and were sorry to have to leave, but it was good to be home and to enjoy Mom's home cooking again. Austin and friends are attending Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio, and have now returned to their college classes.

The bride is a 2006 graduate of Gallatin County High School and a 2010 graduate of the University of Kentucky. She is employed by the Gallatin County School System as an agriculture teacher and FFA advisor.

News from Gallatin Health Care

Larry Lawrence called me to give me Monday off from cleaning and since one good deed deserves another, I chose to go to Gallatin Health Care to visit my friends. Thanks, Larry!

My first visit was with Linda Hicks in the hall. I had remembered to bring her a toy, just like she'd asked me to do on my last visit. I got her a bear that prays "Now I lay me down to sleep). She was so excited and happy. She gave me a big hug. She is such a joy to see and appreciates a smile and a hug, always.

Catherine Kendall was just going back to her room after eating lunch when I spotted her in the hall. She is always so thankful to get a couple of bananas but I had to apologize throughout my visit for these bananas. This was the first time since I've been giving them to residents, beginning in 2004, that the peelings were actually coming off as I broke them off the stem. No one seemed to mind, though. I always carefully choose the bananas I take them but on this visit I had left them in the car for about an hour in the heat as I ran a couple of errands. It wasn't the smart thing to do but it did create a lot of laughter and so many of them offered encouraging words to make me feel a little better.

I was happy to find Virginia Wash awake so I could hold her hand and talk to her. She had been sleeping during my last two visits and, against her wishes, I did not wake her. On this visit, she was getting her nails done and was wide awake.

Marcla Hutchinson had to cut my visit short because it was almost time for bingo. I walked down the hall with her as she maneuvered that fancy wheel chair to find a choice seat in the dining room for the most favorite of all activities. These residents look forward to winning!

I visited a little with Billy and Marylynn Craig. They had just finished their lunch and were getting settled in their room. I thanked Mr. Craig for serving our country. He has an Army plaque hanging by his door.

Everyone I talked to about the Belterra outing had a great time. Some of them won as much as $120 and some did not. I think it is so wonderful for them to be able to go on these trips. I saw in the center's newsletter that some residents had walked to the dollar store to do a little shopping. I also saw a picture of Carole Losey holding John and Breanna's new baby. John and Breanna work at the center and are loved by everyone. In fact, John was the late Charlie Noel's best bud.

I also learned that the residents spent some time breaking green beans, bringing back many memories.

I stopped to chat with Stella Koerber about the Fall Festival and the Haunted House. It's hard to believe that it is almost that time again. If anyone has a big monster tent like those used for wedding receptions and can lend it to the activity department, they are in need of one. This event is very important. It buys all the presents for the residents at Christmas. Please mark your calendar for October 19, as this is an event you certainly do not want to miss. The entire family can attend and have a wonderful time while supporting the residents. The haunted house is always so good. I am a guide and take a group in the house and everyone enjoys it. My friend, Hattie, will be performing the part of the witch again this year and she'll be daring you to try to take her candy. This will be her third year acting as the witch and the residents love spending time with her before the haunted house opens.

As my visit was coming to an end, I stopped to give bananas to Manuel Elam. He is the biggest western movie fan I know. Across from his room, in the hall, is a picture of some old Thunderbird cars. I made a comment about the picture and back in time he went. He was smiling as he told me about the car he had and could recall things about that car like he still drove it. I always enjoy my Kodak moments like that. It is a special felling like no other when I make that connection! It made the visit extra special.

Planting by the Signs

by Phil Case

Since I wasn't in town on Labor Day, I don't know how much rain you received, but I hope it was enough to help your lawn – and maybe your fall garden. At least the weeds in the garden got a drink even if you've given up on the veggies!

Thing about the rain is this: If you've done any late planting or have things coming on late, it was timely and the fact that the remnants of Isaac seem to be hanging around off and on all week bodes well for late gardens.

In Frankfort, we got several nice rains, beginning about the time I got home from Warsaw late Sunday afternoon, through the night and off and on Labor Day. With the soil temperature as warm as it is, any moisture at all causes things to grow rapidly.

So, for those of you doing any late planting, according to Home Vegetable Gardening in Kentucky, there's not much at all we can be planting now in the unprotected garden. Now if you're planning to use a cold frame or some sort of system to cover the rows, then that's another matter.

I'm going to stick with this weekly column for a few more editions and then yield the space to something more timely in the News until next year's planting season. My monthly overview is published – well, monthly – in The River Times or if you have questions you can always be in touch.

Too, you can access the daily information all year on Twitter. Check out the instructions below.

Now, for this week.

The moon is in the dark phase and will remain there until the next new moon on Sept. 15 at 10:11 p.m. Throughout this period, be involved in only dark moon activities – and if that includes planting, then just below-ground producers.

A look at the signs reveals what's left of today (Wednesday) is ruled by Aries (the head), one of the killing signs. Don't do anything planting related today – not even in a flowerpot!

Outstanding planting is on tap for Thursday and Friday, however, when the sign moves to Taurus (the neck), one of the four most fertile signs. Remember it's below-ground producers and only those from the list below if in the unprotected garden.

Then Gemini (the arms) is up for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8-9. Gemini, as you are bound to know if you've been reading this column, rules the arms and is specifically suited for beans – or peas when pea-planting time comes 'round. Since, however, we can't plant either now, just celebrate the days and leave it at that.

Fertile planting for below-ground producers returns Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 10-11, when Cancer (the breast) comes to rule. Anything that I said two paragraphs above about Taurus applies to Cancer, so just re-read that.

Then we're back to killing signs with Leo (the heart), rounding out this stretch. Leo is up for Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 12-13. Same thing that applied to Aries applies to Leo: Any activity but planting.

Following the Leo days, we find our monthly series of flowering signs, Virgo and Libra, ruling Sept. 14-18 – perfect for those fall mums!

What to still plant

Through September: leaf lettuce, radishes, spinach

In the protected garden, planting and harvest can go on for some time to come. You can use polyethylene row covers to extend the harvest of frost-sensitive crops such as tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers. The row cover traps heat and protects the plants from killing frosts but beware that on warm, sunny days the row cover must be ventilated to protect plants from excess heat.

Ask Doctor Dirt...

END OF SEASON TOBACCO DISEASE MANAGEMENT

With the 2012 tobacco growing season coming to an end, growers are working hard to get their crops into the barns. On one hand, the dry conditions of this past summer have kept leaf diseases like frogeye and target spot in check and we have not seen any blue mold. On the other hand, we saw more black shank and Fusarium wilt than we have for the past three or four years.

Looking forward to the next growing season, it's hard to say what will be the big disease issue. So much depends on the climate when we are dealing with diseases like blue mold, target spot and frogeye. We do know, however, that some problems will show up again and again once certain pathogens get established in float beds or the field.

We need to begin thinking about diseases like Pythium root rot, target spot, black shank and Fusarium wilt and how to get a head start on managing them next season.

A critical step you can take is to evaluate your sanitary practices on the farm. Many diseases we'll see in the float bed system and field survive between crops on equipment and plant residues. You should thoroughly clean and sanitize greenhouses, trays and outdoor float beds in the fall to reduce overwintering pathogen populations. Make sure to bury or burn plant debris and trash.

In the field, especially where black shank may have been a problem, it's important to turn all crop debris as quickly as possible after harvest. The black shank pathogen survives very well on crop residues and stalks left in the field can lead to future disease outbreaks. By plowing those crop residues under in the fall, you will allow the soil microbes more time to break down plant matter and reduce survival of the pathogen.

One of the best practices for preventing or suppressing diseases is rotation to a non-host crop. Even though we are many months away from planting, you can start the planning process and make decisions about field choice and potential rotation crops.

Fall is a great time to think about variety selection and begin planning for transplant production. Varieties such as KT 210, KT 206 and KT 209 continue to perform well against black shank, and KT 210 offers a good combination of black shank and Fusarium wilt resistance. We should also see a wider availability of KT 212, an early-maturing variety that is similar to 14 X L8, but with moderate resistance to race 1 black shank.

Using social media wisely

Social media are very much a part of our culture, and many young people and adults regularly use the sites to connect with their friends and family. When used appropriately, social media can be very positive. When misused, there can be serious consequences for a family. Instances of cyberbullying and sexting have increased with the popularity of social media. In some cases, thieves have used social media accounts to find their next victims.

Some social media sites have member guidelines, such as Twitter and Facebook that require account holders to be at least 13 years old. However, some young people falsify their ages to gain entry into a site.

Here are some tips to help you and your children safely navigate social media sites.

Make sure you and your child use your real names and ages when activating social media accounts.

Personal information such as social security numbers, home addresses, phone numbers and when you're on vacation or not home, should not be posted on social media sites as it could make your family a prime target for thieves.

Make sure your child personally knows each person listed as their friends or followers. Your friends and followers should also be limited to people you know.

Utilize social media privacy settings, but realize that not everything you say on social media is private.

Check your child's and your friends' accounts to make sure no one has posted any private or inappropriate information about you or your family. Ask your friends to remove any information involving you or your family that you feel is inappropriate or private. Remove tags from any inappropriate photos your friends may post of you and your family.

Remind your child that what they say and do online can have real-life consequences.

Encourage your kids to talk to you if someone's online behavior makes them feel uneasy or threatened.

For more information on online safety, contact Gallatin County Cooperative Extension Service.

FASD Awareness Day
September 9th is National Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders Awareness Day. It's the ninth day of the ninth month, representing the nine months of pregnancy.

Did you know that FASD is the leading known preventable cause of mental retardation in the United States? Many women stop drinking as soon as they find out they are pregnant — but alcohol can hurt an unborn baby even before mom knows she's pregnant. True prevention means making sure that women know this information before getting pregnant.

Why is this important? Every day there are more babies born with FASD than HIV, Downs Syndrome and Spina Bifida combined. Statistically, over 39,000 Kentucky citizens are affected with FASD, even though most have not been identified as having this often "invisible" disability.

Can you pick out a person with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders? You can't — at least not just by looking. People exposed to alcohol prenatally can look just like everyone else, but have significant brain dysfunction.

Every single organ and body system in the developing baby can be affected by alcohol, depending on the specific development oc-curing at the moment that alcohol is used. The brain develops every single day of the pregnancy, which makes it especially vulnerable to damage.

Of all the substances of abuse, (including heroin, cocaine and marijuana), alcohol produces by far the most serious neuro-behavioral effects in the fetus, resulting in lifelong, permanent disorders of memory function, impulse control and judgment.

Babies with FASD grow into adults with FASD, which means that many families face a lifelong struggle to help their loved ones find supportive education, housing, employment and social networks.

It's all of our responsibility to make sure that this information is visible in our communities, and that women are supported to have alcohol-free pregnancies.

There is something you can do right now that will change the future of a child who hasn't yet been conceived. Pass this information on to everyone that you know — make sure that all of your friends, families, teenagers and colleagues know that there is no safe time, no safe type and no safe amount of alcohol if a woman is pregnant or could become pregnant.
